Deputy Director of the CELIS Institute (Research programme and events)

The CELIS Institute seeks a

Deputy Director (Research programme and events)

This is a unique opportunity for an entrepreneurial-minded, highly motivated, early-to mid-career academic, public servant, or practitioner who is a thought leader in relevant disciplines of law, or law and economics, or law and political science and can see the benefits in combining traditional academic excellence with a broader stakeholder engagement.

The successful candidate will also have strong management skills and shares our vision of building an independent non-profit, non-partisan research enterprise dedicated to promoting better regulation of foreign investments in the context of security, public order, and competitiveness.

He or she will join the Institute initially as a deputy director and later become co-director leading the Institute together with the existing directors. From the start, he or she will have significant influence on the Institute's long-term development in the areas of research and events and is expected to take on an active leadership role in the day-to-day management. The position shall be filled as soon as possible.

The Institute provides a unique platform to engage with all relevant stakeholders in the field, involvement in highly topical ongoing research, training, and consultancy projects of its affiliates, and it offers plenty of opportunities to implement innovative ideas.

If interested, you are invited to informally inquire with the Institute's directors before sending in an application. E-mails shall be addressed to sh@celis.institute and jhp@celis.institute with a copy to ra001@steffenhindelang.de.
